

Three women compare at lunch

KI SAYS: GET VIEWS
AND WINE

"The tasting room at Proulx Wines is at its vineyard. It sits on the top of a hill and is one of the prettiest spots you'll ever see. They also have a menagerie of animals, from ponies and goats to a pig and cats. Fun!"

THE GREEN VASE ANTIQUES up the road in Arroyo Grande is a fabulous, creative space in a sweet old house. It's room after room of cool surprises, including old chinoiserie and glassware. The handmade pillows were a particular treat, as I don't often stumble on shops with plentiful fabrics.

VANESSA WANTED TO STAY FOREVER at Sorenson Farms Antiques. "This shop was my personal favorite," says Vanessa. "I wanted to live there!" It's located way out in the country, but both the backyard and shop are worth the trip. The prices were good too; Taylor bought two cut-glass serving bowls for $30 and six drinking glasses with silver rims for $23.

SINCE WE WERE ON THE COAST, we did lunch in Cayucos at Schooners Wharf restaurant. It's a burgers and fry joint with a huge menu, and the ocean view is spectacular. Then it was off to Rich Man Poor Man Antiques Mall, which has a lot of variety and huge collections of Roseville pottery and antique estate jewelry. After stops at The Cottage and Reminisce Antiques Etc., we ended the day and our trip at Artisan restaurant in Paso Robles. Five stars for sure! Delicious fish and steak, light-as-air jalapeño cornbread, honey butter, and—of course—delightful California wines. Step
